ELECTRIC CHAIR AND DEATH ROW AWAIT HAUPTMANN IF APPEAL FAILS

Here is the "death row" in New Jersey state prison at Trenton, where Bruno Hauptmann awaits execution of the death sentence imposed upon him for the murder of the Lindbergh baby. Hauptmann was sentenced to die in the electric chair, shown at the right, during the week of March 18, but his appeal will delay execution presumably some months.

BRITISH MUSEUM ACQUIRES EARLY WRITINGS

Here is shown Mr. H. Idris Bell of the British Museum inspecting the two imperfect leaves and a small scrap of papyrus codex which date from the middle of the second century. They were among a collection of Greek papyri from Egypt, acquired by the British Museum last summer, and they relate to the Gospel story. According to experts they are older than any New Testament manuscript hitherto known.

YOUTHFUL BRITISH STAR MEETS MRS. ROOSEVELT

Two celebrities exchanged greetings when Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt, and 10-year-old Freddie Bartholomew met at the annual Charles Dickens birthday dinner in New York. Young Bartholomew was brought from England to play the part of David Copperfield in the new film of that name, and he made a great hit.

ENGLAND'S PAGEANT MASTER

Here is a typical pose of Miss Green Lally, the famous Pageant Master, who will again direct the National Pageant of England, to be held at Langley Park, Slough, Bucks, May 28 to June 11, in celebration of the King's Jubilee. More than 6,000 performers will take part in the pageant.

RETURNS TO LEAFS

Frank Finnigan is happy to be back with his old team-mates, "King" Clancy and Mac Kilgus, on the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team. Toronto bought Finnigan from St. Louis to fill the right wing position, and it is expected that Frank and his "they-shall-not-pass" backchecking will be a great help to the Leafs.

BASEBALL PRESIDENT

Here is a new picture of Ford Fick, president of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs. This youthful and popular leader of the National League is the ninth president.

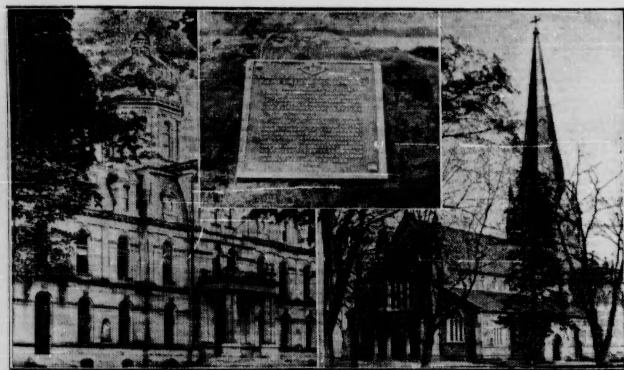

CONDUCTOR

Mrs. Albert D. Jordan of London, Ontario, who has the unique honor of being the only woman in Canada conducting a chorus and orchestra in memory of her husband, Mrs. Jordan, who is the founder and conductor of the Jordan Memorial Chorus and the Little Symphony in London, is working, as her husband did, to multiply the real joy of music to as many as possible.

"TINY'S" BROTHER

Here is a picture of Paul Thompson, brother of "Tiny" Thompson, left wing star of the Chicago Black Hawks. Paul is considered one of the finest left wingers ever to play in the N. H. L. He has an uncanny way of finding the net, and goaltenders dread the sight of him.

FREDERICTON LAST WEEK CELEBRATE 150 YEARS AS A CAPITAL

On Friday of last week, February 22, the inhabitants of Fredericton, New Brunswick, commemorated the 150th anniversary of the selection of Fredericton as the capital city of New Brunswick. The celebration took the form of parades, public speeches, and a huge birthday cake made out of snow by school children around Parliament Square. Above are three landmarks in the New Brunswick capital. At the left is a picture of the Parliament Buildings; at the right is a view of Christ Church Cathedral, which was erected through the untiring efforts of Bishop Medley (1846-1858), and is often referred to as the first new cathedral foundation set up on British soil since the Norman Conquest, 1066. Inset is a picture of the tablet which commemorates the loyalty, faith and courage of the early settlers who established the City of Fredericton. It was unveiled on October 8, 1903, the 150th anniversary of the arrival in the locality (now known as Fredericton) of a company of United Empire Loyalists.

MACON COMMANDER PROBES CRASH

BOOK TALK

A Village in a Valley by Beverly Nichols.

As in his "Fleeting Hours" there is the same joy in a garden and its beauty; the peaceful atmosphere of the undisturbed land; the peace with its simple and quiet people and happenings.

A book that is like a clean, pure breeze blowing through a sultry world.

The Lovely Ship by Storm Jameson.

The story is written round the personality of Mary Jameson, whose strongest characteristic is perhaps love of possession.

A woman with a strong, clear-headed brain, a stolid, clear-headed, a passionate self-assertion. A love of these more sensitive and less self-asserted than herself.

But above all, a lover of the ships built in her yard.

Storm Jameson writes convincingly and interestingly of scenes, people and conditions connected with the great shipbuilding industry.

At seventeen, he tried painting, but soon thereafter began writing tragic poetry. At the age of twenty-five he exhibited Pelicans under his own name and how to look smart and businesslike and at the same time not too masculine. How to look well-groomed without the semblance of fuff.

Then, there are the seasonal problems. At this time of the year, for instance, the matter of choosing an extra business frock is fraught with difficulties. It is still too early to shed the winter coat.

Still, it's a little early for a strictly spring frock or suit. So, what to do?

Well, there's one way to compromise. A grand type of dress for the business girl who is very practical in her choice of a wardrobe.

The skirt is dark brown and the tailored jacket is of beige and white checked linen. The brown and leather belt match the skirt and the broad shoulder line and wide lapels are a contrast.

One of the nice things about a suit like this is that it can be worn in so many different ways.

The skirt can be changed. The checked jacket can be worn with either a beige or a white skirt on warm days.
